This seminar will be held online.

This seminar explores the connections between racism, adversity, and health outcomes. Attendees will be introduced to anti-racist approaches to adversity and current policy proposals in the California.

LEARNING OBJECTIVES:

1. Explain the relationship between structural racism, adversity, and health
2. List concrete ways to address racism and adversity and their health impacts
3. Recite anti-racist approaches to adversity

A recording with closed captioning will be available on the STAR Seminar web page at dpbh.ucla.edu/STAR-Seminar.
